The Shelf-Life series is an entirely new concept. The books have been designed from the ground up with student input. With academic faculty helping guide the production of these books, the Shelf-Life series is meant to help supplement the student's educational experience while on clinical rotation as well as prepare the student for the end-of-rotation shelf exam. We feel you will find these question books challenging but an irreplaceable part of the clinical rotation. With high quality, up-to-date content and hundreds of images and tables, this resource will be something you will continue to refer to even after you have completed your rotation.

The series editors would like to thank Susan Rhyner for supporting this concept from its inception. We would like to express our appreciation to Catherine Noonan, Laura Blyton, Amanda Ingold, Ashley Fischer, and Stacey Sebring, all of whom have been integral parts of the publishing team; their project management has been invaluable.
